

Top 5 Songs For A Game Night

*See published article

Game nights are a favorite activity whether you're planning a small family gathering or a large group activity. Everyone will have a favorite game, and learning new ones is exciting and challenging. Great company, great games, great food, and great music, all go a long ways towards creating an unforgettable fun-filled night.

Unfortunately, people might tend to clash on the music. Especially if you have a mix of older and younger people in your group.

Image>>>https://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/4/4f/Kenny_Rogers_Frontier_Festival.jpg
>>>Source: Wikipedia Commons

So, to avoid any unpleasant disagreements, go for classic songs about your theme; fun and games. Songs that are timeless and appealing across genres. Also go for a wide spread of styles so that everyone will feel they've had something they really enjoy.

Here are five great songs to kick off your game night playlist.

1. Queen of Hearts

Juice Newton, one of the biggest pop singers in the '80s and '90s enjoyed playing this fun and funny song live so much she insisted her producer cut it. It remains one of her best known early works. Playing with the Queen of Hearts might not be very smart, but you can certainly play hearts at your game night!

2. Losing Hand

Everyone has to lose sometime. Ray Charles delivers appropriately sympathetic music – slow, stirring, and heart-breaking. The jazz-style piano that accompanies his mournful voice conjures up images of smoke-filled rooms and crystal chandeliers. Romantic and melancholic, it's sure to add a touch of class to your game night.

3. Viva Las Vegas

The King of Rock'n'Roll needs little introduction wherever he goes. Elvis music is a landmark that old and young alike will recognize, and probably enjoy. This song is all about forgetting real life for a few minutes and going to a city where it's OK to have fun. It might also make you want to break out your sunglasses, because win or lose, you can spend a few minutes in bright light city.

4. The Gambler

Of course, The Gambler by Kenny Rogers is a great song to play when you've got a hand that you want to hold, or need to fold. In fact, this song seems to have been custom-designed for people learning to play Texas Hold'em. Tasteful and dashing this song plays easily in the background and has a classic, whiskey-smooth feel about it.

5. Tumbling Dice

No one will ever forget the Rolling Stones. Besides, most game songs are about cards, so it seems a shame not to include this shout-out to rock music. It's got a decent beat and a fun melody that will liven up your night of fun and games.